Linda Zajac and Sandy Russo of Aeronautics put finishing touches on the 1999 International Aviation Art Contest display.

Conference gets off to a flying start

Opening the 8th Annual New Jersey Aviation conference last month at McGuire Air Force Base, Commissioner James Weinstein laid the groundwork for daylong exchange sessions between the airports and communities about expansion and noise.

"We need to talk about the issues," said Weinstein, "so people will understand. General aviation airports are an important part of our future in this state."

Assemblywoman Connie Myers of the Hunterdon and Somerset district, presented the residents' points of view about living in the vicinity of the airports. Other guests voicing their pros and cons on the airport issues included Mayor Angelo Corradino of Manville; Jack Gentempo, president of Branchburg-Readington Aviation Action Coalition of Neshanic Station and Bertha Scott, Mercer County Director of Transportation.

This year's International Aviation Art Contest display was a striking backdrop. The theme "Flying Is Fun" showed pictures of hot air balloons, space flight imagery and airplanes.

At a June awards ceremony in the Headquarters building, Commissioner James Weinstein, Chief of Staff Laurie Gutshaw, Acting Director Ted Matthews of Aeronautics & Freight Systems and John Wiley of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) Technical Center presented awards to 18 school children.

badgeWear*... do it with style

* for a more secure workplace

Wearing a photo ID will become the NJDOT style for safety in the Headquarters Complex. The "badgeWear" campaign is now under way in an effort to deter theft and violence in the workplace.

According to a June 11 Employee-gram from Commissioner James Weinstein, effective July 6, all employees are required to wear their badges at all times while in Headquarters buildings.

"We can safeguard our workplaces with state-of-the-art technology and improved security policies and procedures, but we also need the understanding and cooperation of our employees," Weinstein said.

Don Chiacchio, Director of Support Services, has also taken other steps to make certain employees and customers are safe. "We've improved physical security in the Engineering and Operations, Finance and Administration and the Main Office buildings," he said.

These include inside and outside security cameras that will scan the parking lots and sections of the buildings; "opera" ropes at the entrances to the Main Office and Engineering and Operations buildings and security patrols in and outside of the buildings.

Employees can do their part by securing handbags, wallets and other belongings; locking vehicles and reporting unidentified visitors, thefts and tampering to security at 530-5291; and filling out an AD-4 form when transferring Department computer equipment.

Inspector General Ed Klarman said that he invites suggestions about improving security. He can be reached at 530-3091.

1804 highway marker now on display at Headquarters

"It may look just a piece of stone, but it's irreplaceable as a testimony to the history of road building in New Jersey," said Commissioner James Weinstein at the dedication of the 195-year old marker. The event took place during the Historic Preservation Week celebration at Headquarters last month.

Chief of Staff Laurie Gutshaw and Deputy Commissioner Al Ari assisted Weinstein in the unveiling of the marker that was recovered from Route 1 south of Princeton Junction at the 9-mile mark of the former Trenton and New Brunswick "turnpike." It is permanently encased in a display designed by the State Museum staff.

Believed to be the last surviving marker along Route 1, it dates from the building of the turnpike. The State Assembly authorized the roadway to link with the newly-completed bridge across the Delaware River. The brownstone is representative of markers that were set at intervals to note the distances to specific localities.

When NJDOT authorized the removal of the marker in April 1986, then surveyers Timothy McGough, Harold Neil and Edward

NJDOTers clinch state awards

Deputy Commissioner Al Ari presented 16 NJDOT employees with Public Employees Recognition Awards at a special ceremony in the Lawrenceville Armory last month. All awards are based on special performances during or after work hours that reflect credit on the State of New Jersey.

Heroism

Assistant Crew Supervisor Ricky Lee House and Truck Driver Dean Jack of Operations North received this award for saving the life of a co-worker when his truck struck the fuel pumps and they caught fire. Jack immediately extinguished the fire while House turned off the gas supply. House and Jack then removed the co-worker from the truck.

Exceptional

Electrical Mechanic James Burns immediately contacted the paramedics when Crew Supervisor Mohammed Khan was injured. He also administered first aid.

Since August 1998 Section Chief Joseph Meheski voluntarily assisted the State's Federal Transportation Capital Program Director who implemented the Enhanced Inspection & Maintenance Program while he maintained his Statewide Planning work.

Crew Supervisor, Mechanics James Schmidt has worked independently beyond his normal work hours to keep the Emergency Service Patrol (ESP) vehicles in the North Region in top condition.

Professional Achievement

Mark Marino received this award for the major part he played in the development and implementation of the Department's inspection program for heavy-duty diesel vehicles. Marino's initiative, dedication and self-motivation to coordinate all parts of this new program has made New Jersey a national model for diesel truck roadside inspection. The 27-year MVS veteran set up the program in addition to his responsibilities as Technical Support Unit Supervisor.

Community Service

Project Engineer Roderick Gilmore in Traffic Operations North has volunteered with the Boy Scouts of America for a decade. Last year Gilmore spent his vacation on 24-hour duty guiding Troop 5 scouts toward their merit badges at the Rodney Scout Reservation.

Capital Program Management's Elkins Green is an active Trentonian when he isn't Supervising Planning at NJDOT. A devoted volunteer to youth activities, Green was appointed to the Ewing Township Recreational Commission Volunteer Board and the West End Little League.

Project Engineer in Surface Jeffrey Hewitson helps troubled and needy children. Hewitson is an active fundraiser for the Sunshine Foundation, a group devoted to bringing sun into less fortunate children's lives, and volunteers in Tough Love to help youths with drug problems.

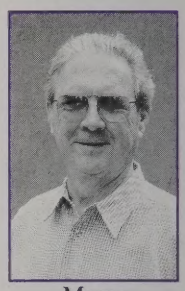
Supervising Engineer 2 Roger Hummel has managed organized games for Trenton, Ewing and Pennsylvania children in Awana for Boys and Girls — a community outreach program. Hummel coordinated the activities on a weekly basis for the entire school year.

Bringing food, shelter and opportunities in education and job skills training to homeless veterans and their families in the Mercer area is where it's at for Steven Kook. The Assistant Engineer in the Office of Community Relations has dedicated several years as a volunteer with the Department of Military & Veterans Affairs to improve the lives of these vets.

It's a family affair for Supervising Engineer Anker Winther and his sons as they dedicate their vacations to Habitat for Humanity. For eight years they annually have packed their tools and traveled to Maine where they've provided aid in building homes for needy individuals.

Longevity

Michael P. Marue started state service in August 1955 as a Clerk Typist and will retire later this year as a Senior Engineer in Traffic Operations. Although Marue spent most of his working years in Trenton, he was assigned to the Route 41 project in Cherry Hill. "The project was the most memorable," said Marue.



Marue

Principal Engineer (George) Ross McCombe travels to Trenton from Jersey City. With no intention of retiring soon, he will celebrate 44 years of service in November. Currently in Operations Support Bridge Unit, McCombe has one favorite project he'll always remember from early in his career: as inspector of the Route 10 culvert in Livingston on Pleasant Valley Way.

Suggestion

While former Equipment Inspector Albert Fazekas and Crew Supervisor Lawrence Gore were employed at NJDOT, they submitted a suggestion for the design and fabrication of a liquid calcium chloride dispensing unit called Lectrocal 2000. After the state implemented the suggestion, the team received $10,000 for their idea. In the first year of use, the state saved $460,000.

Both employees retired last summer.

Service has its rewards

Commissioner James Weinstein, Chief of Staff Laurie Gutshaw, Deputy Commissioner Al Ari, Assistant Commissioners Rod Roberson, Russ Tong and Pippa Woods, Division Directors and Managers all took part in the ceremonies that applauded employees for their dedication to state service.

Celebrations complete with cake, cookies, lemonade and coffee marking 10 to 35 years of service were held throughout May — Employee Recognition Month — and June. A roster of employees who received awards is on the insert.

Retirees

MVS's Flo Lerit retired in May

When you've got things to do, places to go and people to see, it's not hard to retire. That helpful voice on Director Dick Kamin's line at MVS, Support Services Representative 1 Flo Lerit, officially left in May with very definite plans in mind.

Lerit

In addition to trips to the Poconos, Ocean City, MD and Vermont for several weeks this summer, Lerit plans to keep up with the arts at Walnut Theater in Philadelphia. In her spare time, she'll work at her exercise program, her walking regimen and spend time with her three grandchildren.

When she visits MVS and NJDOT headquarters, she'll drop in on friends and daughters Robin Nagy and Shari Lerit, who work in MVS Data Output and Auditing and Accounting, respectively.

Other retirees are:

April: Crew Supervisor J. Graham of Building Maintenance, 32 yrs.; Heavy Equipment Operator John Canale of Region South, 20 yrs.; and MVS Field Monitor 2 Miriam Moodhart, 17 yrs.

May: Project Engineer Roy Lawrence DeSandre of Design Services, 33 yrs.; Construction & Maintenance Technician 1 James Barlett, 32 yrs.; Secretarial Asst. 2 Janice Furda of Drawbridge Operations, 32 yrs.; Head Drafting Technician Leigh Smith of Design Services, 31 yrs.; Administrative Assistant 2 Joan Heller-Combs of Bureau of Local Aid Programs, 30 yrs.; Project Engineer Salvatore Noto of Construction Services, 29 yrs.; Electrical Mechanic Ronald Runyon of Central Region, 29 yrs.; Automotive Mechanic Raymond Golden of Maintenance and Operations, 25 yrs.; MVS Support Services Representative 2 Willie Ruth Powell, 25 yrs.; Equipment Operator Kenard Lloyd of Regional Operations South, 22 yrs.; and Operating Engineer Heating & Air Conditioning Roger Reidinger of North Region, 22 yrs.

Wolf plotted the position of the 56-inch high mile marker while archaeologists Lauralee Rappleye-Marsett and Ihor Jaroslaw Sypko supervised its excavation.

Other historic week activities included brown bag presentations. Visiting speaker Carl F. Bard P.E. of Connecticut DOT presented "How to Treat Historic Corridors with Context Sensitive Design." It is one of six pilot projects generated by FHWA's "Thinking Beyond the Pavement" seminar held last year in Maryland.

Angus Kress Gillespie, professor of American Studies at Rutgers and coauthor of Looking for America on the New Jersey Turnpike, gave an entertaining lecture about the famous toll road with anecdotes from his book and research, especially about the administrative model of the agency, the U.S.Army.

Richard Hunter of Hunter Research Co. presented an historical and cultural overview of the Route 1 corridor. The President a local cultural resources consulting firm, Hunter provided a humorous perspective of our culture's interaction with the businesses along the Route 1 corridor. He talked about the history of the modes of transportation on the trail, canal, railroad and roadway and showed the audience pictures of signs that are still in place.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation sponsored the celebration.

New faces

Here are names to match the new faces at NJDOT: Joanne Trageiser, the new Manager of PMIS Payroll and Time Management; Patrick Vannozzi, Personnel Assistant 2 (to Manager William Bennett); Donna Martin, Technical Assistant in Personnel assigned to the PMIS Payroll Unit; Zina McCleese, Technical Assistant Personnel in the Exam Unit; and John Boross, Principal Library Assistant (to Librarian Carol Paszamant) in the NJDOT Research Library.

Department joins clean air efforts

When the heat is on, the ozone hits red and the air is bad, NJDOT partners with other groups to clear the air. Assistant Commissioner Rod Roberson and Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Commissioner Robert Shinn met in May to publicize ozone action days and the steps the departments will take during the ozone season.

Where does this problem originate? Emissions from vehicles, paints and power plants mix and bake in the sun.

From May until September, New Jersey will announce ozone action days when there's an exceptionally high concentration of ground-level pollution that runs a color spectrum from red (unhealthy) to orange (almost unhealthy) to yellow (moderate) or green (good).

The way to curb the ill effects for individuals with heart or respiratory ailments and for healthy individuals is to have people and agencies partner to raise awareness, and reduce the activities that contribute to the problem.

NJDOT has joined the Ozone Action Partnership with other state departments, businesses, organizations and environmental groups. Activities include sending e-mails to alert employees and encourage carpools and public transit. In addition, NJDOT Operations will curtail force account resurfacing, grass mowing and trimming, mechanical sweeping, tree trimming and chipping, reduce hauling of materials by trucks, pesticide application and spraying and reduce operation of equipment or idling of vehicles on ozone action days.

Although the ozone problem is more intense in the hotter months, the Department is committed to reducing pollution year round. A case in point is the prize NJDOT's hydrogen fuel cell-powered electric car won for engineering excellence last month in the 11th annual Tour de Sol. The event is a 225-mile road rally dedicated to promoting the use of clean, sustainable energy.

An environmentally-friendly vehicle, the NJ Venturer is the product of a public-private partnership. Because the only emissions that it produces are heat and water, the NJ Venturer does not contribute to ozone pollution. The cell creates electricity when hydrogen and oxygen are mixed, providing power to charge the car's electric batteries and enabling the car to run 400 miles at 45 m.p.h. between fuelings.

NJDOT also fights year-round pollution through its commitment to the new enhanced vehicle inspection and maintenance program, which will provide cleaner and healthier air by ensuring better running cars. Because New Jersey's vehicles contribute to one-third of the pollution, if we can reduce this amount, it's a major step to cleaner air.

Everyone can join to combat the effects of ozone pollution if they use their gas or diesel-powered cars less and take advantage of mass transit. NJ TRANSIT has started a new program called Ozonepass. Here's how it works.

Employees buy $2 passes good for roundtrip bus or train fares on all of New Jersey's mass transit lines through their New Jersey employers the day before an ozone action day occurs. Some employers will give employees free tickets. An employee will save the entire commuter cost for one day and contribute to cleaner air.

For information about pollution levels call 800-782-0160 toll free; about concentrations of ground level ozone call 609-633-2043 or visit the DEP Air Monitoring Web page at www.state.nj.us/dep/airmon.
